FOR RELEASE UPON RECEIPT

FLIPPING THROUGH FEBRUARY: THIS MONTH'S NEWEST READS

February 5 – February 11

The Fault in our Stars by John Green

The much-lauded author of young adult fiction returns with a humorous and emotional novel about a teen with terminal cancer and her outlook on what is left of her life. Adults love John Green too, so don't think you have to be 16 to read and enjoy his contributions to literature!

Kill Switch by Neal Baer and Jonathan Greene

Television writer Baer turns to fiction in this fast-paced novel about a forensic investigator and a serial killer on the loose. Also available in audiobook.

The Rook by Daniel O'Malley

This debut paranormal thriller is getting a lot of attention. This book is filled with suspense and dry witty humor and is a guaranteed page-turner.

Greedy Bastards: How We Can Stop Corporate Communists, Banksters and Other Vampires from Sucking America Dry by Dylan Ratigan

In journalist and host of MSNBC's The Dylan Ratigan Show's first book, Ratigan explains how "greedy bastards" have taken over our health care system, banks, energy pipelines and other sectors. Known for his non-partisan approach to the issues, his examples include flow charts and cartoons to underscore his points, and he looks at how other nations have found solutions to some of the issue he explores. Also available in audiobook.
